Evil has been summoned once again when the evil Djinn is awakened by a burglar named Morgana during an art heist. When the Djinn takes blame for the crime, he's sent to prison where he grants wishes to prisoners in return for their souls, to ultimately structure an army to obliterate all humanity. It's up to Morgana to save the human race. As far as sequels go, this one wasn't that great, especially since it was straight-to-video. It does the original no justice. The one thing that I didn't like about this movie is that the Djinn doesn't act like Nathaniel Demerest, he just acts like something else the whole movie. In the first one he could pass for human easily, in this one he doesn't. Though it did have it's good points. I really liked it at the end when he goes inside the casino and tells that woman, "You look a little full." That part was pretty funny. If you like cheesy sequels that don't live up to the original, then you will love this one. It wasn't bad, so give it a try. I give it 5 out of 10 stars.
