

FearAsylum - Only Place Fear is Tolerated

<http://www.fearasylum.com>

The Fate of Tylon and other Dubious Things

18/04/2008 17:25 by Donovan Cane

I recently made a spark on socialspark.com to help me see what other people think of my site (fearasylum.com) and the webmaster from The Fate of Tylon and other Dubious Things took the opportunity to Review my site and here what he had to say,

Browsed around SocialSparks some more looking at other blogs and came upon Fear Asylum. They have some interesting site graphics, sure to strike fear into the hearts of many readers!

I do like the header banner a lot but am not sure on the gray on black theme. I know it is designed to get the right “atmosphere” for the page but reading gray on black tires my poor eyes out, a higher contrasting white text on the black would work better for readability but i’m not sure how that would compromise the vision for the site.

I also like the Wrestling ads as I think they fit the look and theme of the site very well. Having related topical advertising that fits into your theme is a really nice touch so that they don’t just scream “advertisement”!

The one thing Fear Asylum could do to really cement the theme is to have Iron Maiden’s “The Number of the Beast” as their theme song :-D.

I really love the way he reviewed my site he didn't sugar coat it or anything just a raw review, now since Spark's are free to do I choose to Review everyone's site that review's mine so to give back I'm going to review www.greatpcs.net

I love the layout (theme) when I first went there it was easy on the eyes and loaded in a reasonable time, and the amount of content could last me a lifetime. His site has great review's on sites and some post are funny which make's the site more enjoyable and comfortable to be a subscriber. Only thing I didn't care for is that it doesn't stand out from other blogs/sites.all in all The Fate of Tylon and other Dubious Things AKA www.greatpcs.net is a very fun blog and very well designed. Keep them Post rolling!!

KUDOs!